

To: Dr. Ferguson and the Editorial Board of JEP:LMC

We are resubmitting our manuscript (XLM-2025-0564), entitled “Compensation in audiovisual speech perception: discounting the pen in the mouth.” We have removed the two typos identified by R2.

All of R2’s other comments related to our use of track-changes, which we have now removed. In particular, the revised result Figure 4 for Experiments 1a-c in our previous submission did not contain the additional line that the reviewer was worried about; it had already been removed following R2’s request. We also clarified footnote 4 in terms of the differences between the present work and the approach taken in Liu & Jaeger (2018). Finally, we made some very minor rewording changes in the introduction and discussion to remove ambiguity that we were made aware of by other readers (1st paragraph on p4, last paragraph on p. 30).

We appreciate the opportunity to strengthen this paper further, and hope this revised manuscript is now suitable for publication. We thank you and the reviewers for the helpful guidance throughout the process.

Sincerely,

Shawn Cummings, Gevher Karboga, Menghan Yang, and Florian Jaeger
